Registration is now open for the Clinical Update Sleep conference, and 2016 promises to be its biggest year yet. The day will cover a range of topics, including hypersomnia and parasomnia, sleep-disordered breathing and comorbidities, plus an update on recent clinical trials in sleep-disordered breathing and non-invasive ventilation.

The format of presentations, interactive lectures, case studies and workshops, including a workshop aimed at using polysomnography and CPAP equipment, means that those attending will be informed of all the latest advances in understanding and managing sleep disorders.

The conference is also accepting abstract submissions, full details of how to submit an abstract can be found on our website www.guysandstthomasevents.co.uk. All accepted abstracts will be printed in the Journal of Thoracic Disease.

6 CPD points have been applied for from The Royal College of Physicians.
